BURTON MCMAHON (VIC, SA & WA ONLY)

Dylan McMahon (winemaker Seville Estate) and Matt Burton (winemaker Gundog Estate) produce strictly limited volumes of high-quality, single-vineyard Chardonnay and Pinot Noir from the Yarra Valley. From the vineyard to the winery, the Burton McMahon philosophy is about attention to detail, and creating wines true to their terroir.

Burton McMahon D'Aloisio's Vineyard Yarra Valley Chardonnay 2017 SOLD OUT

Burton McMahon George's Yarra Valley Chardonnay 2016 GTW 96 Pts Andrew Graham 94 Pts

93 points! Smoke and flint, lemony, green apple, stone fruits. Pretty start. Lemon oil kind of feel, slippery, fine, very long and gently palate staining. Has great finesse and concentration in tow. Mike Bennie, Wine Front 11/3/18

Burton McMahon George's Yarra Valley Chardonnay 2017

Burton McMahon Syme On Yarra Vineyard Pinot Noir 2015

93 points! This is firm, tight, structured and stringy. Herb-infused fruit, bridled with tannin. Cranberries and red cherries. If it was a band it would be called: Woody Herb and the Stalky Stalks. There isn't a lot of fruit depth but it's full of tension and puffed with woodsmoke. It needs a year or two. There's interest galore here. Campbell Mattinson, Wine Front 13/7/16

HEARTWINES

Heartwines is a project that utilises enthusiastic non-interventionist winemakers, using locally grown fruit to make small and unique batches of hand-made wines. Tessa Brown is the Pinot Gris + 3 and La Biche Fiano queen, Peter Fraser slaves over the old organically grown bush-vines to make Danger Shiraz, Archie Grenache and Ruby Rosé and Mark Kelly makes a flavoursome, yet restrained and mineral Beechworth Chardonnay grown on granite.

Heartwines 'Archie' Old-Vine Grenache 2017 (Blewitt Springs, McLaren Vale) Gary Walsh 95 Pts

95 points! Randall Pollard's home brand, made by Pete Fraser from old vine Grenache planted in the 40s. Flowers, juicy raspberry, hazelnuts and sugared almond, exotic spices, a subtle earthiness. Medium bodied, ample flavour but not sweet, as such, and pulled into shape by cool almost 'mineral' acidity and fine sandy tannin, and a very long earthy red-fruited finish. Here's a wine with a pulse! Bloody beautiful. Gary Walsh, Wine Front 13/5/18

KOERNER (VIC ONLY)

It was planted in 2000 with Chardonnay, Pinot Noir, Cabernet Sauvignon and Shiraz. Winemaker; Simon Steele is on a roll.

BEAUJOLAIS

CHÂTEAU THIVIN

Château Thivin The Côte de Brouilly was recognised as a great site and was planted by the Romans; it is the oldest Beaujolais vineyard. In 1383 the first part of the Chateau Thivin cellars was built, this is the oldest Côte de Brouilly estate and one of the most highly respected producers in the region. All of Chateau Thivin's organically-grown, largely old gamay vines are planted on the (mostly southern) slopes of Mont Brouilly, a small extinct volcano. The mature vines, great sites and endless dedicated work in the vines gives a modest yield of perfectly ripened small bunches. At harvest, these are gently placed into small crates undamaged, then tipped into vats that are closed and sealed when full of complete bunches. The marvelous simplicity of the process continues as the vats are left untouched for 7-10 days, whereupon any fermenting wine, resulting from bunches being squashed under their own weight, is drained out and the remaining whole bunches pressed. The young wine is then rested in large old barrels for 6-12 months before bottling. Such a simple and natural process gives amazing red wines.

Thivin Beaujolais Villages 'Manoir Du Pavé' 2018

91 points! Lovely thing to drink. Cherries, red and black, something a bit like wet clay, spice and flowers. Ripe fruit, soft and silky tannin, a distinct 'mineral' thing going on with the acidity, and a crisp finish of forest berries and grilled meat. Yes. Gary Walsh, Wine Front 11/6/19

COTE D'OR, BURGUNDY

AMIOT-SERVELLE

Amiot-Servelle's history begins with the establishment of the domaine by Clement Tachot in the village of Chambolle-Musigny in 1920. Eventually, his son-in-law took charge of the estate, and the domaine operated under the name of Servelle-Tachot until the torch was passed to his daughter and her husband Christian Amiot of the Morey-St-Denis family of Pierre Amiot. All of the wines are certified organic as of the 2008 vintage.

SIMON BIZE ET FILS

What is remarkable about Domaine Simon Bize is that each of its wines clearly portrays the 'house style' as well as its individual personality, without one masking the other. The domaine's winemaker, Chisa Bize, is a Japanese Burgundian perfectionist. It is a little-known fact, but this domaine has some of the oldest vines and the highest average vine age in all of Burgundy. There are few domaines that could boast a Bourgogne Rouge made from vines planted in 1963, 1971 and 1980; or a 1er Cru Vergelesses made from vines planted by his forbears from the '30s - '60s with the youngest planted in 1978! The winemaking philosophy is based on the principle that yield is of the utmost importance and should never exceed 40 hectoliters per hectare (a personally imposed restriction, given that the legal limits set by the French government are significantly higher). She believes in harvesting 'perfect' fruit, and does whatever is required to accomplish this, even if it involves a degree of risk that most winemakers are not comfortable with.

ROBERT CHEVILLON

This is a 13ha Domaine of ultra high quality. At the core of the Domaine are some impressive vineyard sites and enviable old vines. The quality is preserved by 'less than greedy yields' and confident winemaking eschewing fads that the family has disrespect for. All of the wines demonstrate harmony, ripe fruit and structure thanks to both hard work in the vineyard by Denis (who insists on low yields and a strict grape selection) and to a fermentation and barrique élevage carefully controlled by Bertrand. The vineyards south of Nuits (such as Pruliers and Vaucrains) tend to have more muscle and drive while those nearer Vosne, such as the Chaignots and Bousnelots, offer more on elegance and silkiness. This is one of the very best and most pleasure-giving domaines of Burgundy and one of the most reliable too. Many writers and commentators state that Chevillon is the best or equal best domaine in Nuits St. Georges. The Chevillon brothers are two of the most hardworking vigneronns we know of in all of Burgundy, and this combined with skill and passion, plus a quiver full of mature and old vines [many in excess of 80yo] provides us with more than ample reasons to buy these wines year in, year out

FONTAINE-GAGNARD

Domaine Fontaine-Gagnard is one of the newest and most important producers in the village of Chassagne-Montrachet. The style of the wines at Domaine Fontaine-Gagnard is intense, racy, deep and complex. They start out life classically balanced and accessible, but always with expressions of terroir and the underlying structure to age gracefully. The wines are always focused and detailed, and are generally aged in about a third new oak for the Premier Crus and a little more for the Grand Crus.

FRANÇOIS BERTHEAU

Bertheau's vineyards are all located in the village of Chambolle and include 'Bonnes Mares' and 'Les Amoureuses' amongst other top sites. François Bertheau is a very hands-off winemaker and allows the wine to express its self. Minimal intervention, little racking and rare use of new wood results in a bright and pure style.

JEAN GRIVOT

Winemakers Etienne Grivot and his wife Marielle are the 5th generation of the Grivot family to be running the domaine. The 15ha vines range from 45-to 50-years old, across 22 sites including great village and cru; Vosne-Romanée, Nuits-Saint-Georges, Clos de Vougeot, Echézeaux and Richebourg. Without doubt one of the undisputed stars of Burgundy, Etienne Grivot has quietly gone about his business over the past couple of decades, slowly but steadily nuancing his wines gently and gradually so that today, he is universally admired for being in the very top echelon of Burgundian producers. A very 'natural' approach in the vineyards, using organic treatments only, grass-cover, horse and plough (currently around 30% of the whole estate and increasing, including Richebourg, Echezeaux and the Premiers Crus), harder pruning, more rigorous canopy management and a far more rigorous crop-thinning and bunch selection process.

CHABLIS

LOUIS MOREAU

Louis with his wife Anne and father Jean-Jacques owns an impressive 48ha of vines (for Domaine Louis Moreau) from which the best wine is kept, and the rest sold to négociants. There is a full range produced; from Petit Chablis to Grand Cru, including 5 appellations of Grand Cru and 3 of 1er Cru! The style is focused on pristine fruit, crisp acidity, clean lemon, grapefruit, hay and green apple flavours of naked (no oak) limestone-grown chardonnay. There is a very small amount of new oak used in the Grand Crus.

GILBERT PICQ

This is a tiny domaine with the two Picq brothers overseeing vineyard and cellar. Their father also works in the vines and their sister looks after administration, it's a family affair. The pursuit of 'earth to glass' purity using chardonnay as a conduit is obvious to all who taste these wines. There is a range of 6 wines with no Grand Cru's, some believing that this fact drives the family harder and pushes quality further. Picq's low yields give him good strength & acidity, and his wines always have nerve. He vinifies only in stainless steel tanks. He uses a large portion of yeast lees and a longer lees ageing time than most.

JEAN BOURDY

The domaine; run by the Bourdy family since 1475, is based in the sleepy village of Arlay near Château-Chalon. All 10 hectares of vineyards were converted to biodynamics in 2006 and certified by Demeter in 2010. They produce a range of wines including Côtes du Jura, Crémant du Jura, Vin Jaune, Château-Chalon, Vin de Paille and the digestif/aperitif Galant des Abbesses. The reds are made from 1/3 each of pinot, poulsard and troueseau, and not surprisingly they are light-medium bodied and live (like a white) off their acidity. Cote de Jura whites are made with 100% chardonnay. This 10ha domaine has been certified biodynamic since 2006, but has been organic for much longer.

The Macle family started growing vines in Château-Chalon in 1850 and has been winemaking since the 1960s. 7th generation winemaker Laurent is currently working with his father Jean. Their cave is from the 16th century and their Château-Chalon is considered the Grand Cru of Jura. The liquid treasures of Domaine Macle are hard to come by. Even in France they are quite rare and the Domaine has not historically exported from Europe. The Château Chalons have all the power of great Vin Jaunes, but the extra finesse, elegance and staying power that this little Grand Cru of Jura gives.

STEPHANE & BENEDICTE TISSOT

The Tissot family produces a very large range of 'small batch-single site' wines. The winemaker Stéphane is infectiously passionate and enthusiastic, intense, intelligent and also charismatic. Tissot is a talented and individualistic producer. Their savagnin and reds are always planted on clay for increased acidity. Chardonnay is planted on both clay and limestone, and is fermented with wild yeast and made in a very reductive way with a lot of the yeast lees. All vineyards are strictly biodynamic and the yields are kept very low. Wild ferments, extended lees contact and reductive handling is the style here.

CHÂTEAU DE CARAGUILHES 'CARA' + COCHON VOLANT

Located in the Corbières region of the Languedoc. Monks were the original winemakers in the 12th century, now Pierre Gabison is the current winemaker since 2005. Their vineyards have been farmed fully organically since 1987 and were ECOCERT certified in 1992. ## LANGUEDOC

DOMAINE DE LA MAJONE

Picpoul de Pinet is known as the Muscadet of the south of France, and is one of the named crus of the Coteaux de Languedoc. Picpoul means "lip stinger," which refers to its naturally high acidity. The style is a little difficult to describe, but is a little like an imaginary cross between dry Australian riesling [citrus, acidity, drive and freshness] and French melon de Bourgogne from Muscadet [doughy, yeasty, lemony and more textural]. The best examples, such as this, have a youthful, lemony, sedate aromatic nose and a zesty palate showing hints of pear, lemon with a hint of mineral and firmness.

PIERRE DE PRUNET

From close to the Spanish border and close to the Mediterranean come these flavoursome yet easy drinking wines. Stylish package with juicy, fresh and expressive flavours mean these wines have been a massive hit as an 'entry level' floor stack or a by-the-glass option. The wines are all labelled Vin de Pays de Mont-Baudile.

BEL AIR

Pierre Gauthier, with the assistance of his wife Catherine and son Rodolph, is producing Cabernet Franc wines of profound class and elegance from the clay/limestone-rich soils of Bourgueil. The quality of his wines can be attributed to the south-facing slopes, old-vines (80 years old in some parts) and Pierre's meticulous approach. Since formally taking over from his father in 1995, Pierre has overseen the conversion to organics and still does things the 'older' way, as practiced by his father.

Organic vineyards with two main types of soils; a limestone-clay, known locally as Terres Blanches and a pebbly limestone known locally as Cailottes. No oak is used creating a pure, Chablis-like Sauvignon Blanc.

CÉCILE CHASSAGNE

Cécile's vineyard holdings cover just 1.6 ha in the heart of the Dentelles de Montmirail, a terraced 'lieu-dits', planted in 1970 by her father. The site reaches a height of 300m above sea-level, soils are comprised mainly of stony red-clay alluvium and is planted to three classic Rhone varieties; Grenache, Syrah and Mourvèdre. Producing only one cuvée means they can focus their energies on careful vineyard management and astute winemaking.

JEAN-CLAUDE MARSANNE

The cellars are based in Mauves (same village as Chave and Gonon) and the fruit is sourced from their steep, organically-managed terrace vineyard plots. This exciting new producer is a favorite amongst European critics and sommeliers alike for its traditional and pure approach to winemaking and viticulture in this great quality:value appellation

SYLVAIN GAUTHIER - DOMAINE DES PIERRES SECHES

Sylvain Gauthier numbers among the young, eager and talented 'rock-star' northern Rhone producers. He is set on making the world take notice of his dense but pure syrah and is happy to work his mostly high-altitude, steep granite sites by hand, ploughing by horse and also using a hand-hoe for weed control. This is a fully organic domaine of 6ha, all Southern St. Joseph steeply terraced on steep high slopes. Coming from Lorraine, where his father was a vigneron, he left the region and studied wine in Beaune before working with Chapoutier and Stephane Robert, both significant Northern Rhone producers. He then started on his own with a single-minded vision of making pure, natural, clean and vivid 'real' Rhone shiraz.

CHÂTEAU DE SEGRIES

This estate, purchased by Henri de Lanza in 1995, has vines that average 80 years old. The vineyards include 30 ha in Lirac, adjacent to Châteauneuf-du-Pape and a 6 ha plot in the commune of Tavel. The wines are dense, spicy and quite rich compared to many other Côte du Rhône.

AHR VALLEY

JEAN STODDEN

Rotweingut Jean Stodden is a legendary wine estate with just 6.5ha in the steep-sided Ahr Valley, a slate, shale and basalt riddled area in the cool North of Germany's wine zone. It's 70km directly north of the Middle Mosel (this latitude equates to a cool 500km south of Tasmania!) To achieve ripeness, the pinot vines are planted on steep slopes angled towards the sun.

Based in the pretty village of Rech, 5th generation Alexander Stodden has been crafting the wine here since 2001. The estate is a pinot noir specialist. The focus here is on the vines, mostly on steep slopes

Jean Stodden Spätburgunder 2017

90 points! It's spicy, autumnal and sappy, a little smoky too, over red cherry and strawberry. Light and bright, sappy and smoky, squishy red fruit, a subtle bitterness, fine rasp of tannin, and a solid savoury finish. Interesting wine. ### ZIEREISEN

A visit to Ziereisen is a memorable and very moving experience. The cool and calming influence of Edel Ziereisen is often tested by the fast-talking and break-neck mental speed of her energetic and excitable husband, Hanspeter, who gives the impression he sleeps only 5 hours per night. The vineyards here, in the very bottom left corner of Germany, are rooted in limestone and (at 270-550mt) look down on Alsace, Jura and the Swiss regions around Basel. Hanspeter is a constant experimenter, a few years ago he started to blow jets of compressed air into his flowering pinot bunches, a seemingly unusual thing to do. Normally each flower turns into a berry, but blowing off some of the flowers reduces the crop and creates looser more disease-resistant bunches (and a smaller crop). Although he is always in a rush when speaking, he never rushes his wines. Whether it be the judicious full-bunch stem/skin macerations, the 20 hour press cycles (with stems) for whites or the 2 or 3-year large-old-barrel ageing that many wines receive; his wines are given what they deserve. Add to all of this his penchant for naturalness (organic viticulture, minimal or no use of SO<sub>2</sub>, natural ferments, long lees-ageing, minimal filtration and fining, minimal use of stainless steel and heavy reliance on old / neutral oak vessels) and we begin to scratch the surface of the unique Ziereisen philosophy.

MOSEL

VON HÖVEL

Max von Kunow owns 21ha in sweet spots of the Saar Valley, the coolest part of the Mosel region. Von Hövel is a historic estate that started when these wines were favoured by Napoleon, back in the very early 1800's. The cellar itself is around 1000yo and used to belong to the Monastery of St. Maximin. Max has organic sites that are mostly all steep, mostly all slate, and he also has a large proportion of mature vines. Since he converted the 21ha estate to organic and sustainable 'Fair'n Green' practices Max says that the wines he is making have less tropical pineapple and lychee characteristics, and more herbal tea and mineral notes, with better phenolic ripeness at lower alcohol levels. In the cellar, he places more emphasis than his father before him, non-botrytised fruit for dry and Kabinett wines, and more crushing of skins and also some skin-contact to coax out more extract from the berries. All ferments are fermented with wild yeasts where possible, and he uses a lot of the traditional 1000lt Mosel barrels.

NAHE

JOH. BAPT. SCHÄFER

Established in 1900, the winery is located in the lower Nahe with 8 ha of vineyards on loam and weathered slate. 4th generation winemaker Sebastian Schäfer has been running the winery since 2002. Natural fermentations, old oak and stainless steel are used. Sebastian Schäfer, a young dynamo who, since taking over the helm of this small Nahe winery from his ailing dad in 2002, has created magic wines that now have the likes of K-P Keller singing his praises! At 20 years of age, he was awarded a placement in the Gault Millau Wine Guide and in 2013 the reputation of the estate took a giant step when he was invited to be a member of the Nahe VDP.

Located in the southernmost village of the Pfalz region with half the vines in Pfalz and half in Northern Alsace - the border runs through the middle of one of his vineyards! Johannes Jülg is third generation and enthusiastically took over the 20ha estate in 2010, after 7 years of experience working at Keller, Clemens Busch and Clos des Lambrays. He has no recipe for his wine, but rather prefers to listen and watch, and do what nature, the vines and the soils want. His soils vary from limestone to red sandstone, including blends of both.

PRINZ

Fred and Sabine Prinz and their estate is indeed a revelation. It started as the archetypal "garage estate" when Fred started making small batches of wine under the house in 1991, whilst he was the full-time winemaker at the Kloster Erberbach estate. By 2004 they had their own plots, and Fred started nurturing the vines and making his wine as a full-time vocation. The 9.2ha estate is totally organic and Fred makes wines that have the flavour intensity from perfectly grown, "low-yield" and carefully-ripened grapes, combined with texture from skin-contact maceration. The deep concentration and slight chewy texture of the wines is offset by the extreme precision thanks to the high-altitude sites that are set back from the Rhine. In these locations the cooler temperature gives grapes that retain acidity and have more focus.

KELLER

The Keller estate is located in the small town of Flörsheim-Dalsheim in the Rheinhessen wine growing region of Germany and it has been in the family for over 220 years. Many vines were planted in the 50's and 60's. Dual vigneron, Klaus-Peter and his wife Julia turn conventional wisdom upside down by slowing photosynthesis to achieve a long, slow ripening period. In constant pursuit of making the sublime more sublime from one vintage to the next, Klaus Peter's perfectionism in the vineyard and winery is rivalled by few in Germany; his personal intensity and the quality of his vineyards are almost unparalleled. Keller clearly practices some of the lowest yields in Germany these days for his rieslings, with the entire estate averaging about thirty-five hectolitres per hectare. These are crop levels in line with the philosophy of Egon Muller, but out of step with virtually every other top estate in Germany.

WAGNER-STEMPEL

The Wagner family has been involved in wine production now for nine generations, and since the early 1990s Daniel Wagner is responsible for the vineyards and the cellar. All of the grapes are estate grown, organic, hand-picked, naturally fermented and with no additives except for a little SO2. The vineyards are some of the highest in elevation in Rheinhessen. Established in 1845, Wagner Stempel is now well into its ninth generation of family stewardship. Daniel Wagner has lowered yields through far-reaching measures - manual pruning and canopy management as well as selective hand-picking in the autumn are corner-posts of his philosophy of wine production, which is based on the principle that outstanding wines are made in the vineyard.

BENEDIKT BALTES – COMING SOON

Benedikt was born the Ahr Valley (itself famous for some truly great Pinot producers like Jean Stodden) and he comes from a long line of grape growers and winemakers. His ancestors grew grapes and sold to co-ops. He saw the fruits of the family's labour being grown with care, but then turned into simple wines by someone else, so he always dreamed of growing and making his own wine. After wine studies in Bad Kreuznach and 'stages' in Germany, Portugal and Hungary, he relentlessly scoured Germany for vineyards on great sites and he eventually found the Klingenberg Municipal estate and winery that had been founded in 1601 but had been abandoned for some years. This came with very old vines on the steep slopes, so it was a dream come true!

Benedikt says 'Sustainability is very important to us, so we manage our vineyards in an organic way. In addition to the absence of herbicides and chemical plant protection products, we support our vines with natural plant starch agents such as teas, soils and oils. A dozen sheep also help us to control weeds and to stimulate the soil with their natural fertilizer. We are dedicated to the fostering of permaculture in which one does not have to intervene often and which the vineyard renews itself. By that we have to do nearly everything by hand because of the steep terraces. We need up to 2500 hours per hectare per year, which is really a lot. The manual work gives us the opportunity to work gently, vine by vine. That's why we love to be winegrowers!'

ISOLA AUGUSTA

PIEDMONT

AZELIA

Azelia is a small quality-focused estate of 16 ha. owned by the Scavino family. Lorenzo Scavino works with his father Luigi to make concentrated Baroli that are not forcefully tannic in style, but they are serious in structure with firmness, flesh and beautiful balance. The Scavino's seem to be able to coax out the heady perfume of rose and spice along with the berry fruits, forest, herb and savoury notes of the nebbiolo grape. They do a rigorous green harvest, along with conscious work with canopy management to ensure air-flow and allow adequate light penetration without sunburn. The modest yields of only 5.5 tonnes per hectare (approx. 35hl/ha or 2.3t/acre) provide ample concentration in the high-quality raw material. In the cellar cleanliness and fastidiousness are apparent, and the judicious use of large oak barrels preserves the fruit, so it is no wonder the wines are regularly reviewed as being among the best of the region.

BROVIA

In the wonderful hills of Barolo the Brovia family have been growing nebbiolo since 1863. The family organically farms some of the greatest vineyards in the heart of the Barolo area: the cru sites of Rocche, Villero and Garblet Sue in Castiglione Falletto and Brea 'Ca Mia' in Serralunga d'Alba. These sites are in the heartland of Barolo, and the wines are organic, pure, unhurried, as well as naturally and traditionally made. Sisters Cristina and Elena, run the vineyard and cellar and, apart from changing to organics, and making small refinements, they have not significantly changed the traditional winemaking at all. These wines are aged slowly in 3000lt casks, then bottled, unfiltered and unadulterated, usually after about 2 years.

CANTINA DEL PINO

Some of the oldest vineyards in Barbaresco and has been family owned and operated for several generations. The current winemaker, Renato Vacca's, great grandfather purchased the vineyards from the original Cavazza family in the early 1900s and it's been in the Vacca family ever since. Until 1997, their grapes were entirely sold to the Produttori del Barbaresco cooperative. All of the vineyards are located in the Barbaresco appellation and vines average 35 to 70 years of age. The Vineyards and winery are all family-managed. Nebbiolo grapes come from the younger vines of the Ovello and Albesani vineyards, two of the best sites of Barbaresco. Barbera and Dolcetto come from surrounding areas in the Piedmont and Langhe and are vinified differently than the Barbarescos. Cantina del Pino produces three Barbarescos, a Langhe Nebbiolo, a Barbera d'Alba, and a Dolcetto d'Alba. No chemical fertilizers, and vineyards are managed with an extreme respect to the environment. Vines average 40 years old. Wines are neither fined nor filtered.

STELLA DI CAMPALTO

This small estate, now with 6.5ha of vines surrounded by olive trees and natural scrub, was first established in 1910 in the only limestone rich (SE) sector of the Montalcino region, near the old abbey of Sant Atimo. After the estate was abandoned in the 40's it was resurrected by the new and enthusiastic owner Stella Viola di Campalto from 1992. The vines sit at an altitude of around 300 metres above sea level, and the hand-tended organic vines (with 5 people working full-time in this small property) produce perfect little berries that are hand-picked and taken to the cool 3-tiered cellar where the wine is fermented in large truncated cone shaped vats and handled only by gravity. The very slow and cool ageing takes place mostly in large oval oak casks of about 1700lt size (completely topped up all the time) for around 2 years for the Rosso and 4 years for the Brunellos. Stella is never in a rush to release her wines. They are all bottled by hand.

With a visit to Stella's cellar, guests can't help but feel a palpable sense of determined perfectionism and the burning desire of Stella and the workers to best transfer the vineyard character to the glass, naturally and gently. Even though the Brunellos are far from youthful fruit bombs upon release, as they have had 6 or so years of cask and bottle ageing, they are deep, resonant, complex and they have cellar potential to burn. When you open even a 2008 or 2009 now, you can expect them to evolve and change for many, many hours in the glass, and it will probably be better the next day.

'However, if there is one estate and winemaker that, stylistically at least, seems heir apparent to the exquisite sangioveses of Soldera, it might be Stella di Campalto...' Dan Keeling, Noble Rot.
